Becoming a Woman: Female Circumcision

Lago: Bride from Arbore

Baro: woman from Arbore

Pitta: woman from Bechuka

Kerri: woman from Bechuka

Jean: anthropologist from England

Elele: elderly woman from Dassanetch

Peggy: woman from Dassanetch

Naukwa: woman from Nyendite

Jean: woman from Dassanetch

Elele: woman from Dassanetch

Nyendite: a young girl from Dassanetch doing the daily chores

A cow and a woman from Dassanetch

Lago: The day the eight goats are brought, that's the day we are circumcised.

Baro: The girls are not cut. You are cut when you become a bride.

Pitta: What do they cut? Do they cut your vagina, or what do they cut?

Lago: The girls were cut a lot in the past. Nowadays they cut less than in former times, but still it is a lot what they cut. After you have been circumcised you stay inside the house for two months.

Kerri: Bride! Is the cutting bad? Wouldn't it be good to abandon this custom?

Lago: No. You have to do it. When you are a girl you want to have it done because it is your tradition. Your grandmother, your mother, everybody has had it done. If you were told "You will not be circumcised!" you would be very unhappy and think "Why? What have I done wrong? Am I a Hamar woman? Why don't they do it for me?" Then you would run away.

Lago as a bride in Arbore - performing bridal rituals

A woman performing a ritual in a traditional setting

Jean: Is it true that Dassanetch girls are circumcised?

Elele: It is true. Once there are a few girls of the same age group it is said that it is time for them to be circumcised. While they are cut the girls are held by their mothers. One after the other is cut.

Peggy: How old are the girls?

Naukwa: They are young. Nyendite has already been cut. But girls can be circumcised at any age. A woman who grew up without being cut will have it done after giving birth to her first child. It is good to do it then, as a woman has much pain during delivery anyway.

Peggy: Do Dassanetch men marry women from other groups, where women are not circumcised?

Elele: If a Dassanetch man marries a Hamar woman she will be treated like a Dassanetch woman who has not been cut as a girl.

Jean: Are you considered a wild animal if you are not cut?

Elele: Yes. People insult you and say that you are like a wild animal. The clitoris must be removed because, we say, it is something male. To become a woman you have to cut off the clitoris. To insult someone you say "You are a clitoris!"
